The mercury oxide-zinc battery system was known since the 19th century, [3] but did not become widely used until 1942, when Samuel Ruben developed a balanced mercury cell which was useful for military applications such as metal detectors, munitions, and walkie-talkies. [1] [4] The battery system had the advantages of long shelf life (up to 10 years) and steady voltage output.

Mercury--a toxic heavy metal that can cause serious and lasting health problems--turns up in many places that you wouldn't expect. It has now been more than two years since the entry into force of the Minamata Convention, a global treaty to protect human health and the environment from the adverse effects of mercury. But the production of many ...
