

How much lithium does Ukraine have?

Ukrainian researchers estimate the country's lithium oxide reserves at nearly 500,000 tons, making it one of the largest supplies on earth. The sizable amount and skyrocketing demand for lithium has made Ukraine a target of "strategic importance" that attracted global attention, the New York Times reported.

Could a rechargeable battery system help businesses in Kyiv?

Businesses have been forced to adapt. Across Kyiv, diesel generators parked outside shops and cafés rumble into action as soon as power goes down, and many households in the capital plug their appliances into rechargeable battery systems at home. Oleksandr Bentsa, 30, realised he had a potential solution to hand.

Why has Russia knocked out Ukraine's electricity generating capacity?

Russia has now knocked out or captured more than half of Ukraine's domestic electricity generating capacity, forcing energy companies to impose rolling nationwide blackouts that have left homes and businesses without electricity for up to 20 hours a day. Businesses have been forced to adapt.

How many kilowatts does a Ukrainian autonomous system run?

He named his brand Ukrainian Autonomous Systems. Each system thus produced has a capacity of 5 kilowatt hours, enough to run the lights and electrical equipment -- but not energy-hungry electric heating -- in a normal Kyiv apartment for 10 hours. Some he sells without a margin to the army, but most of his customers are civilians.

How are solar and wind projects popping up in Ukraine?

Solar and wind projects are popping up across Ukraine. Hospitals are tiling roofs with solar panels; sheets of solar panels are being installed in small villages that rely on electric power to pump water from wells; the town of Lutsk has fitted solar panels to traffic lights so they keep working when the mains power is off.
